

WinkWorld June 2004

Hello Friends.

As you read this, I'll be on the ranch in SD and preparing to leave for a presentation in NC. See Joan's Schedule.

This month I am sharing more websites and two thesis abstracts of students who just successfully completed their MA's. Thank you to several of you for sharing websites.

Last month, I shared the graduate students' collection of websites, which are organized around the themes of:

Diversity and Democracy

Students and Standards

History and Herstory

Reflection and Reform

Justice and Gender.

I will continue to add to this collection; they are posted at

<http://www.JoanWink.com/itt/diversity.php>

<http://www.JoanWink.com/itt/students.php>

<http://www.JoanWink.com/itt/history.php>

<http://www.JoanWink.com/itt/reflection.php>

<http://www.JoanWink.com/itt/justice.php>

After sending out our last WinkWorld, we received this from Debra, who once did her MA here at CSU. Thank you for sharing.

Debra Schneider

Dschneider@cal.berkeley.edu

Internet sources for women's studies, including history:

<http://baltimoreteacher.com/>

Women's Studies Reading Room

<http://www.mith2.umd.edu/WomensStudies/ReadingRoom/History/>

Great primary source image from the UC Davis Area 3 History and Cultures Project

<http://historyproject.ucdavis.edu/imageapp.php?Collection2=US>

Great documents to use to inform writing in history from the UC Davis A3HCP

<http://marchand.ucdavis.edu/lessons.shtml>

Collections of primary sources (audio, visual, textual):

<http://www.authentichistory.com>

Materials and strategies for teaching US history; this site includes archives of discussions with leading historians:

<http://historymatters.gmu.edu/>

Online professional development to develop teachers to teach history methods and history content

National Humanities Center

<http://www.nhc.rtp.nc.us/pds/pds.htm>

Brenda, a colleague, also shared.

Brenda Betts

bbetts@toto.csustan.edu

Brenda shared the following website.

<http://www.iAbolish.com>

In addition, I want to add that Brenda is creating her own website, which reflects her interest in Social Studies. Her website has many blackline masters for teachers to download and use.

<http://www.csustan.edu/TeacherEd/facstf/betts/bettshp.html>