5 Teachers Honor Their Own Favorite Teachers

Thank you to Barbara McCauley Lovejoy, Candi Grover, Sarah Klein, Rod Hearn, and Chyllis Scott for writing about your favorite teachers.

Dear Readers, you may recall in the last issue of WinkWorld, I wrote that the first 5 teachers to write about their own favorite teachers would receive a free copy of our eBook, A Vision of Vygotsky, by LeAnn Putney and myself. Here they are. Enjoy.

Love Those Libraries

Yes, it is clear, that students' learning is tightly linked to the quality of libraries in your area and your school. However, libraries are not for eggheads only.

Turns out that there are lots of types of libraries. For example, how about this library in Bogotá, Columbia.

And, speaking of libraries, please don't let me start talking about the 90 yr. old woman I met, who is no longer allowed to teach dance because of her age. So, she is a full-time librarian. She goes home for lunch (a salad with green beans) and eats it while she does her treadmill.

Chicabrary

I assure you that Chicabrary will be the most unusual library you have ever seen. The creators, Bob and Denise Wurm, are avid readers, with a delightful sense of finding and creating joy in every day. The Chicabrary is a chicken coop with a library.

The Chickies.

The Coop.

Inside of the Coop.

Food for the chickens.

One of the shelves in the Chicabrary.

I even found a couple of books, which reminded me of something I had written.

As I continued to study the bookshelves, I found other books.

Under Literature, I found: Moby Chick by Melville

Under Drama, I found:
Eggs and Hamlet
King Layer

Under Self-Help, I found:
Chicken Soup for the Chicken-Hearted Soul

Under Health and Beauty, I found:
Beauty Aids for the Molting Hen

And, under Education, I found
Teaching Legible Chicken Scratching

For a long time, I was one of the few people enjoying the Chicabrary, but now they also have a Cockamamie Farm Eggs business. It's not just about books anymore. I should have known it would come to this.

The Book Whisperer, p. 131.

One last library story: LeAnn Putney and I will have an article in the November School Monthly Journal about engagement with libraries. Here are four examples of library mapping, which are part of what we plan to share.

We all know that WW tends to be whatever is lying around on my desk or hanging out in my head. For example, recently I reread Wilfrid Gordon McDonald Partridge by Mem Fox.

Social Media

Our kids, Dawn and Bo, (now adults) like to say that when they were little, if I was tired, they had to take a nap; and if I was cold, they had to wear a sweater. You see where this is going. Now, they say, if I read something, everyone else has to read it, too. Apparently, it continues: As I learn new things with technology, you, too, will have an opportunity to learn also. I know that some of this is old for some of you, but I'm learning bit by bit.

When we began WinkWorld, webpages were very static, and now technology makes us all more interactive.

Facebook

I use Facebook for personal and professional sharing.

Twitter

I primarily use Twitter to share others' contributions.

Google +

I use Google + for professional sharing.

Pinterest

So far, I am only using Pinterest to enjoy others' sharing.

DropBox

I tend to use this to share docs with others.

I tend to be a one-computer person, so I don't feel a great need for this yet. If I get better on my cell phone, I can see how I'll use it.

Summer was filled with grandkids, teaching in Mallorca for 2 weeks, 2 high school reunions (50 years each), one college reunion, the annual Sturgis Harley Rally, and the annual Faith Stock Show.

Things I've noticed in Mallorca in the last couple of years:

- I'm always amazed at how few Americans are there; lots of families from northern Europe come for holiday.
- I see more runners and serious walkers along the Sea.
- I think my favorite places to visit continue to be the Cathedral and the stone walls left over from the Moors (700s to 1400s).
- I continue to be humbled by the many languages, which are represented on the streets and in my classroom.

Leading Ladies

<http://www.leadingladiesmarathon.com/> August 19, 2012 - Yes, I ran the  marathon, and I was not the oldest. There was even a group of women in their 70s, who ran, and one woman, who is 81. Gotta love these women! This run is a Boston Marathon qualifier, so women from all over the US came. It is mostly downhill, and the times were fast.

Responses to my run can be seen on Facebook, August 19 and 20, 2012.

My Dream August 21, 2012

So, last night I had a dream. A group of us, women, were in a city far, far away protesting Aikin's comments on "legitimate" rape. For some reason in my dream, we were all wearing long flowing white robes. The authorities came and broke up our protest and told us that we were not allowed to protest.

Suddenly, I was back on the ranch, and I had a large black marker and a large poster board. I quickly scribbled:

Legitimate protests allowed on this land.

Next, I walked up the dirt lane and held the sign for the few passing cars on our two-lane state highway. Suddenly, the wind started blowing, and the dirt began swirling. When the air cleared a bit, all I could see in every direction were women in long flowing white robes coming from every direction to protest. They came in pick-ups, trucks, cars, on foot, and yes, on horseback.

Keep on dreaming...
